

CLAIMS

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A method for wearing medical products over the Internet, comprising the act of:

providing a server computer with a medical products catalog;

5 accepting on said server a request to create at least one custom order from the first user;

maintaining in said at least one custom order a subset of medical products ordered by said first user wherein said first user has indicated that said products be maintained in said custom order;

10 accepting on said server a second request for said at least one custom order from the second user; and allowing said second user to request and order substantially the same as set at least one custom order.
